HEWING THE WAY AGAIN.

The industrial status of the granite business has, according to our way of thinking, been several grades in advance of almost any other large undertaking in this country. There has been a minimum of disturbance, with its attendant ill feeling and open strife. Where strikes and lockouts have been prolonged they have not been accompanied by disgraceful and lawless actions on the part of both sides or the agents of both sides, such as, for instance, we have had occasion to note in connection with strikes and lockouts in the teaming business. There has rarely been an act to bring shame upon either organization concerned. This, as we view it, places the industrial plane of this business far ahead of the others.

And now, to add to the prestige of the parties concerned the great Granite Outlets' International union and the National Association of the Granite Industries of the United States, embracing practically all the employers, are coming together in a plan to still further reduce to a minimum the possibility for even a cessation of work pending a readjustment of wages or industrial conditions. In no large business do we recall a similar effort. So in taking this step the parties concerned are heaving the way to the common desideratum wherein lies the greatest measure of success for all—a point where friendly relations shall obtain and where both sides act with equal justice, giving or receiving as the prosperity of the times warrants.

In isolated cases there even now exist certain stipulations in present industrial agreements that, pending readjustment of bills of prices, there shall be neither strikes nor lockouts, and they are quite well respected. But if the two great organizations back of the various subdivisions give this sort of a thing their stamp of approval there will be just so much more of an earnest that the stipulation shall be respected. The manufacturers' association of that place and the granite cutters' union of another locality will not then lightly treat any separate agreement, whose express stipulation is that there shall be no cessation of work. In short, the moral force of the parent organization will keep the branches in line so that the losses incident to strikes and lockouts shall be cut out. If the organizations ratify the agreement of their conference committee who formulated it in Boston last week they will have again distanced other great business understandings in industrial progress as they have in the past.

COMPLAINS OF TOWN ROADS

Quarry Owner Says They are Very Bad to the Quarries.

Mr. Editor: A few weeks ago an item appeared in your paper in reference to the town roads, stating that the present road commissioner was doing good work and had good men at work under him. I fail to see where good work is being done. Have travelled over the road between the city and quarries almost every day, excepting Sundays, since last August. For the past fifteen years have been over them a good deal, and I never saw them in such bad condition as they are at the present time. No one need take my word for it. They have only to go over them and see for themselves—to their sorrow.

Last year a number of us got together and put men and teams on the road and fixed up two very bad places at our own expense. Now it looks as if the selectmen of the town are waiting for us to do the same thing this year. At the same time, we are paying heavy taxes on our quarry property. It seems to me and others to be out of place to pay such taxes and keep the town roads at the same time. Then at the end of the year they will boast how much of a surplus they have in the treasury.

A man may have a family to support on a day's wage; he is in for saving all he can out of his wages deny his family the necessities and comfort of life, then at the year end boast how much he has saved out of his wages. Would it be a credit to him? Same in municipal matters. This matter has been before the public before: was brought before the Quarry Owners' Association. They pay large taxes on their property with no voice as to how they should be spent. It is their duty to demand a decent road to travel over to and from their properties.

Mr. Editor, I am not writing this for myself alone, as I have been asked by tax-payers of the town; also quarry owners and taxpayers, to take this matter up with the county commissioners to see if something can be done to better things. If there is a society in the place for the prevention of cruelty to animals, would ask one of their officers to follow a load of granite from the quarries to the city, and see what the poor horses in the wagons are subjected to. The leaders are not much better; in a number of places there is no footing for them at all. Climb over large boulders thrown into the road and ridges of dried mud and clay.

We appeal to the selectmen of the town in behalf of the dumb animals, and community at large, to do something to better those wretched conditions which now exist. We are asking for nothing but what is just and right. A few years ago the roads were in good condition and kept in good condition by one who knew how to do it. Why this going backwards? We are living in an age of progress. Why not live up to the spirit of the age?

Respectfully,
William Barclay,
For Standard Granite Co.

A QUAKER ROMANCE.

The Wooing of Katherine Hollingsworth by George Robinson.

Valentine Hollingsworth accompanied William Penn in the good ship Weltsome and settled in Delaware upon the banks of the Brandywine. Katherine, his daughter, "a delectable Quaker maiden," the pride of the little settlement, was wooed and won by big George Robinson. But George was of the Church of England, and Katherine "must be married in meeting."

"George," writes the author of "Hearthstones in Miniature," "was willing to join the society, be a Friend and be married in meeting or anywhere else that Katherine said. Accordingly he and Katherine made their first declaration fifth day, first month, 1688."

The elders, however, had "scruples," seeing that George's conversion was very sudden, and they asked him this searching question:

"Friend Robinson, dost thou join the Society of Friends from conviction or for the love of Katherine Hollingsworth?"

George hesitated. He prized the truth and he did wish to marry Katherine. So he answered:

"I wish to join the society for the love of Katherine Hollingsworth." The Friends counseled "delay and that Friend Robinson should be persuasively and instructively dealt with." Shrewd men as they were, they allowed Katherine to deal with him, and within a year George joined the society as a true convert.

An old manuscript reads, "He and Katherine were permitted to begin a long and happy married life together, being for many years an example of piety and goodness to those around them and retaining their love of truth and loyalty to the society to the last."

HE HIRED WEBSTER.

A Sharp Nantucket Man's Bargain With the Great Lawyer.

Of course Webster was in demand by those who could afford to pay for his services. A sharp Nantucket man is said to have got the better of the great defender of the constitution in an amusing way, however. He had a small case which was to be tried at Nantucket one week in June, and he posted to Webster's office in great haste. It was a contest with a neighbor over a matter of considerable local interest, and his pride as a litigant was at stake. He told Webster the particulars and asked what he would charge to conduct the case.

"Why," said Webster, "you can't afford to hire me. I should have to stay down there the whole week, and my fee would be more than the whole case is worth. I couldn't go down there for less than $1,000. I could try every case on the docket as well as one, and it wouldn't cost any more, for one case would take my time for the entire week anyway."

"All right, Mr. Webster," quickly responded the Nantucketer. "Here's your $1,000. You come down, and I'll fix it so you can try every case."

Webster was so amused over this proposition that he kept his word. He spent the entire week in Nantucket and appeared on one side or the other in every case that came up for hearing. The shrewd Nantucketer hired Daniel out to all his friends who were in litigation and received in return about $1,500, so that he got Webster's services for nothing and made a good profit to boot.

Fancy Rice.

"I want some rice," said the haughty lady. "You have it for sale, have you not?"

"Sure, ma'am," replied the grocer. "Six cents a pound or two pounds for—"

"Oh, I must have the most expensive kind. It's for a very fashionable wedding."—Philadelphia Press.
